

Youth Art & Self Empowerment Project

HEALING FUTURES:

DIVERTING YOUNG PEOPLE'S CASES FROM THE COURTS TO A RESTORATIVE JUSTICE PROCESS

Jasmin Diaz Tello '23 & Palmer Jones '24
Advancing Racial Justice
Field Supervisor: Felix Rosado
Faculty Advisor: Darlyne Bailey

Did you know the age of culpability in Philadelphia is 10?

Program Process

- Healing Futures is a partnership between Youth Art & Self-empowerment Project (YASP) and the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office – with support from Impact Justice.
- Philadelphia's first pre-charge, youth-focused restorative justice diversion program.

Palmer's Takeaways:

- Learning is an act of protest.
- Be okay with not being okay.
- Addressing ignorance allows space for growth.

Jasmin's Takeaways:

- The power of knowledge.
- The power of community.
- The power of self.
- The power of apology.

Overview of Praxis:

- Learning, facilitating, connecting, brainstorming, and community outreach.
- Current community members (ask us what that means!)

GET INVOLVED

Scan me!

yasproject.com
instagram: @yasprojectphilly

WHO AM I REALLY?

If someone asked you to describe yourself, what would you say?

I am Black Young Activist fighting for youth criminal justice.

I am A father & true family man

I am somebody that you can lean on when going through things